

About me

Since graduating with a B.A in Information Technology at Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT), my focus in my professional career is to develop practical and functional applications for any problem.

During a paid internship at clevermethod, I had the responsibility to develop web applications for the millions with the client SharkNinja. The reward of knowing that your creation is being used by millions of people, is a feeling of accomplishment and creates a hunger to develop even larger applications to change the world.

When not online, you can find me spending time with my family, practicing my photography techniques, or in the online world of Azeroth.
